

THE PEOPLE ARE WINNING.

Consumers Surely Forcing the Trust Bread Out of the Market.

HARVEST FOR SMALL BAKERS.

There Are 1,500 of Them and
They Turn Out a Three-Cent Loaf.

THE PUBLIC PAYS FOUR CENTS.

In Brooklyn and New Jersey the Same Determined Fight Is Being Made.

The people's eyes have been opened by "The Evening World" to the fact that they are paying too much for their bread. As always happens when they find that they have been imposed upon, the people have set about righting matters. Thoroughly convinced by "The Evening World's" statements of the enormous profits realized by the wholesale bakers that it is time to lend a hand in the good work of reducing the price of the five-cent loaf, consumers all over the city are refusing to buy bread baked by the members of the Wholesale Bakers' Association, and are demanding of the grocers the four-cent loaf which the small bakers have begun to furnish to the retailers at three cents. It is the Wholesale Bakers' Association, composed of sixteen of the largest bakeries in this city, which is keeping up the price of bread. Its members have grown rich through the combine which they established several years ago. In the face of the fact that the great reduction in the price of flour has enabled bakers not in the Association to sell bread at three cents a loaf and make money, the big firms in the combine have, by means of their immense resources, been able to offer the retailers inducements, such as furnishing them with handsome cases in which to keep the bread, which enable them to control the bulk of the bread trade and at the same time keep up the price of the standard loaf.

But, as already stated, the people have taken a hand in the fight, and the big bakers will have to come down a cent in their prices or find their occupation gone. Already the sales of the Wholesale Bakers' Association have fallen off to such an extent as to cause alarm. An instance of this remarkable reduction in the amount of bread sold by the Trust since "The Evening World" demonstrated that the consumers were imposing upon them, came to light yesterday during the reporter's visit to Rockwell's, at 22 East Seventy-fifth street. While big, good-natured Hugo Fredericks, the manager of the concern, was endeavoring to show that the sales were all struggling along on the narrowest possible margin of profit, one of the drivers came in to turn over his collections and give an account of his returns for one-day-old bread. The driver's attention was called to the fact that one of the grocers whom he served had instead of the usual half-dozen or so, only sent him a "fault," the driver explained. "The grocer says that he can't sell our bread for five cents since 'The Evening World' has been printing figures. He says that he is getting his supplies from the small bakeries for three cents a loaf, and that the people won't pay more than four cents for it now." The driver said that the same story wherever he went, and that his returns of one-day-old bread were heavier than ever.

The utter fallacy of the Wholesale Bakers' Association's contention, that they can't furnish bread to retailers for three cents a loaf and continue in the business, is shown by the fact that many small concerns have been selling full-weight three-cent bread for over a week, and that they are making money.

The United States Bakery Company, in Jackson street, is selling three-cent bread as fast as it can be baked, and the American Baking Company, in the same street, is doing the same thing.

George H. Weber, of 31 Bank street, is doing a thriving trade, also at the reduced rate. Over in Brooklyn, Frederick R. Keener, of 35 Marion street, is furnishing his grocer customers with three-cent loaves as big as the combine's four-cent loaves. Jersey City is following the same line. Rates, the big wholesale baker at Newark avenue and Canal street, is making money as he says "to beat the band," on bread which he sells at three cents a loaf.

Mr. Bates says that it was "The Evening World" which influenced him to reduce his price. "I find," he said, "that my business has been increased to such an extent that I can't furnish bread to retailers for three cents a loaf any longer. My business is making more money for me than before the cut. The profits are now as large as they were six months ago, when flour was much higher and I charged a cent a loaf for bread. Why, the other bakers are holding out to me more than I can understand."

Further down Jersey "The Evening World's" fight is having the desired effect. In Rutherford, Grocer M. L. Jonberg, who has a very large business on Park avenue, has stopped taking four-cent loaves from a Newark firm.

THEY MAY ARBITRATE.

Possible that Clock Manufacturers
Will Leave It to the LXX.

Philadelphia and Other Cities New Control the Trade.

Suffering Among Strikers Is On the Increase.

It is hardly probable that the disastrous effect of the clockmakers' strike has been given the consideration which it deserves.

There is a situation so grave that it has been suggested by one of the most important manufacturers in this city that the Committee of LXX, be called in and requested to look over the field, that the public may see and appreciate what one strike can do for this city.

"Here is the point," said a leading manufacturer last night, "and it is one which neither myself, my firm nor any manufacturer can afford to ignore. 'Just two days ago I found we were running short on woollens, and I requested my purchasing clerk to order in a lot more. On account of the tremendous amount of goods we make up, we must necessarily deal with more than one house. My clerk sent the order to one of the largest mills in Philadelphia. We were immediately informed that there was no woolen in the market. We wrote to others, but invariably received the same answer. 'It struck me as rather queer that a house which did a business in the busy season of $50,000 a week should suddenly be compelled to refuse a profitable order. The result was that I investigated, and I found that the manufacturers of the West of Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland and the other cities had bought up practically all the woolen goods in the market, and we were left. 'The result? Why if the strike was declared on to-morrow we would not have enough woolen stock on hand to run our mill three weeks. 'I see the statement made in 'The Evening World' that the clock manufacturers' business had fallen off from $15,000,000 to $5,000,000. That is absolutely correct, but mildly drawn, to say the least. It hasn't stopped at the $5,000,000."

THE STRANGLER'S WORK.

Another Denver Unfortunate Mysteriously Murdered.

DENVER, Nov. 13.—Another victim has been added to the list of women mysteriously strangled in disorderly houses in this city.

The victim was Kiku Oyama, a Japanese girl, twenty-four years old, who came to this country to attend the Chicago Exposition, and later came here to live with a countryman, Int Oyama. The woman was found this morning in her room with a Turkish towel knotted about her neck.

She was breathing, but died soon after discovery. Her alleged lover and other Japanese have been arrested, but there is no evidence against them. This is the third case of the kind, and the unfortunate women of the city are horrified.

mark, but is going down rapidly. If it were temporary, the loss might be borne, but it is not. It represents a permanent loss, because it has gone to the cities we have been fighting for years. We had gradually drawn all the trade to New York, so that this city was looked upon as a centre, and no one dared to compete with us. We practically held the market, and consumers depended on us. We made better garments than could be made in any city in this country or any other country, and now the market has been split.

But, seriously, the idea of requesting a body of representative business men to take the Committee of LXX, has not only been broached, but has been discussed by some of the leading manufacturers, and it is more than likely that steps may be taken to have a thorough investigation of the strike—its cause and effect.

Joseph Barondine, the leader of the strikers, said to-day: "The Manufacturers' Association don't want it, for fear of the facts, an investigation of their acts would bring out it. The application of the strikers for aid were more numerous to-day than at any time since the distress among them began."

A meeting of the labor leaders will be held next Thursday evening, in Church street, to take further steps to aid the strikers. Emil Holstein, a clockmaker, of 155 East Broadway, appeared in the Essex Market Police Court as complainant against some of the leading manufacturers, and the Justice Grady dismissed the case.
